I take this way to say a word to the Gentlemen and Ladies of Bangor and Vicinity As parents you would do well to remember that Dr Journeay has A gentleman who at fifty years old was in my office had had it he would give me one hundred dollars If I would save one tooth in his head at that age But he was too late If you will thus value one tooth what should be the value of children

Now if you can not save your own you can save teeth for your children Almost every day some one will come to the office with some of their two nice extracted teeth which I find with sad fact that the painful tooth could have had a permanent one There are but few persons who are wearing sets who have never had but some one will certainly have a permanent when this one is out of the way

A very large proportion of our patrons, have never had a tooth extracted forgotten that in our first set we ever had a tooth And that all teeth that grow in after the twenty are permanent ones thirty two teeth have been extracted within the past year, seven fifteen for one little girl who was not eleven years old Will you parents allow your children to lose their first time by your neglect? If by any chance they have lost your natural teeth, a good old fashioned set anywhere to go for the best artificial teeth that can be put in Bangor and vicinity is to be had only by the proven experience all that he has represented

DR. JOURNEAY Though we have not the honor of your personal acquaintance with the gentleman yet we have reason to believe that he is a most skillful practitioner of the dental art. At least he has all of his own home look young and has attested by art a pair of jaws to some of the fond ages which dame nature thought to give of this first legal tith too soon We think Mr Journeay position of the two full sets of teeth he has inserted cannot be excelled anywhere.—Bath Intelligencer

My price is now $50 for a whole set of the best kind of teeth $20 for a half set.

Having become satisfied after thorough investigation that Elastic Sponge, as now and lately manufactured, is one of the best of all the substitutes for curled hair, for many if not most uses in Upholstery, we have accepted the Agency of it, and intend to make it hereafter a specialty in our business. The objections which have been made to it and which it is well known we ourselves have thought were well founded, we have ascertained cannot be urged against the article as now perfected. The process of manufacture has been entirely remodeled under the advice and superintendence of one of the most eminent chemists of New England. New chemical and mechanical appliances have been introduced in cleansing crude Sponge, and in charging it with glycerine with such entire success, that Elastic Sponge may now be said to be chemically pure. There is absolutely nothing in it but the close fibre of sponge and chemically pure glycerine.

The objections to Elastic Sponge being thus removed there remains its exciting merit which is certainly entitled to be considered one of the most valuable as it is one of the most curious and interesting of late discoveries. Chief among these merits is, that it is proof against moths,—the great scourge of the bedding,—and against all other insects. Then is elasticity is permanent, itself, as it is upon the principle of the curled hair of the animal, and consequently will not get out of shape like hair, which we have always seen in all beds of long standing. Then it is now equally clear that it is wholesome and clean. It is certainly safe, easy to manipulate, and cheap enough for all except the most common of goods. For the cushions of Chairs and Sofas, Carriages, Hearse and Horse Cars and the like, it will probably be found, everything considered, the best material. For all cases, and especially for mattresses, we are prepared to recommend the public as giving a fair trial, as we ourselves intend to do ourselves. We already use it in our own families, and take orders for mattresses of every description, to be made up and delivered to order. Apply to

A NEW WAY TO HANG GOWNS AND SHAWLS A few days ago I was as one without hope The gowns in my crowded closets either were getting badly wrinkled from being folded away on the shelves, or were defaced with ugly twisted folds, on account of their heavy dependence upon loops The beauty was nearly crushed out of my flounced black grenadine, trimmed with satin pipings and as for my cashmere suit, whenever I lifted the poor, draggled thing from its peg, I always felt as if I had some sort of drowned cur by the nape of the neck But all of a sudden I had an idea! In my despair, I had asked my utmost depths what was to be done and they, equal for once to the occasion had promptly responded "stair rods?" "Hurrah!" said I, joyfully "Nothing could be better I'll try the plan at once." It happened that we had some round brass stair rods stored away in the garret. I brought one of these down to begin with, took two pieces of strong cord, each three-quarters of a yard long, made a long loop of each by tying its ends together, went to my closet, slipped each over a separate hook—slipped in the stair rod, and there it swung ready for gowns cashmere or grenadine! First I folded the cashmere lengthwise, and hung it smoothly over the rod, very much as you would hang a folded long shawl over the arm then I treated the grenadine in the same way and hung it smoothly over the cashmere. There they were, safely disposed of at last! The weight of the goods thus evenly supported over nearly the entire length of the rod served to take out every wrinkle, rod and dresses hung flatly against the wall, leaving room to hang less important dresses over them, from the hooks above, if I chose, and however often I might need either of those valued gowns, I knew I had only to slip one end of the stair rod from the loop, and remove the dress. [Hearth and Home.

The house of the Ridley Bros., in Wayne was entered Sunday, the 28th ult., and thoroughly ransacked, by a sneak thief, who carried off some wearing apparel, numerous small articles and a small amount of money He was pursued and arrested near Lewiston, having the stolen property in his possession. The same day entered the house of Nathaniel Surtevant of East Wayne, and made a similar raid. He was recognized as a graduate of the Reform School by the name of Charles H. Wood.

The West is more completely inundated with people seeking work than the large cities of the East. A great many New Englanders having tried the experiment are returning to their native haths, fully satisfied that their old homes are to be preferred to the inhospitable wilds and rude society of the far West.

HONOR TO LOYALTY

During the service of Memorial Day at the New York Academy of Music Hon Wm M Evarts in the course of some remarks brought with a forward tribute of respect in behalf that our soldiers fighting through our cause that whatever valor and determination may have been shown by their opponents the latter were fighting against their country and against the high principles of humanity and that to award them equal honor with our fallen soldiers is to confound treason with loyalty oppression with justice right with wrong, and to destroy the very elementals sentiments of patriotism In the course of his address this thoughtful and dispassionate lawyer touched the true chords of natural feeling in the following sentences

The war was the war of an intelligent right and honest people who were fighting for what they owned and for what they regarded It was the country the country of all of us, and a country which all found an rebel to their hopes suitable to their love We do not admit that though this war in which these deaths have occurred was a civil war we do not admit that those who fell fighting for the flag and to uphold the Government of the United States are not entitled to the great praise and the great gratitude which attends those who have fallen in battle for their country However other civil strifes may divide the combatants so that some fight for the Commonwealth for the empire or for royalty or for the Republic our soldiers fell fighting for the United States its flag its government, their and our country [Applause] The opposing hosts, whatever valor they have shown, must admit to this final criticism that they died in a lost and failing Rebellion and whoever seeks to keep alive their name and the credit of the Rebellion [Applause]

But we are not to be told Mr President, that those of us who honor the graves of the soldiers who fell for their country are keeping alive civil strife, or maintaining divisions except that division that must always be maintained between those who love their country and defend it, and those who attack and would despoil it [Applause] Now all who fought in this war fought not by the command, not to sustain the interests not to maintain the glory of any man or any set of men They fought for the country in which all were equal, all had an equal share A personal patriotism, a personal duty, a personal honor, formed their motives and led their steps to the battle and laid low by battle the dead Americans And how great is that country of which it can be truly said that the heroic dead, counted by hundreds of thousands as we who surround them are all honored Americans.

What country can be greater than that in which all know and feel that it is the common manhood of the whole people that we thus celebrate and pay our homage to, as heroism Coming from this war too, who is there but feels that whatever may have been the sufferings, and they were plentiful enough, whoever may have been the sufferers and they were numerous enough, from grief and wounds and hunger and pain and, finally, in the death of those they left, yet, as the result of the war, though suffering is left by this affliction, by no fault of the United States, the population in revolt and subdued by our triumph of arms has not been robbed or curtailed in a single right, in a single privilege, in a single faculty, in a single prospect of equal honor and prosperity with ourselves, and we ourselves, maintaining our Government, all its institutions complete, untouched unextinguished, and all that has been accomplished really as this, that, whereas, there was occasion of strife, and cause of weakness and sense of shame from the presence of an institution foreign to freedom and to enemy, the war has wiped all of this shame and stain from our escutcheon, and our shield is now wholly inscribed with the names and the hopes of Liberty. [Applause.]

HORACE GREELEY AND JEFFERSON DAVIS

It is one of the curious coincidences of the times that the two personages most prominently before the people of the South just now, are the political head of the late slaveholders rebellion and the distinguished editor who signed the bail bond that released the arch traitor from durance While Jeff Davis is marching through Georgia to very different music from that of Sherman's army Horace Greeley is breaking bread and drinking milk with the Texans and expressing his astonishment and delight at the evidences of civilization furnished by their toleration of his presence As Davis may be regarded as a reliable exponent of the sentiment which clings to the lost cause ' while Greeley has been a prominent though less consistent adversary of slavery and the rebellion the appearance of these two men upon the Southern platform their expression of views and the reception of their utterances by the people of that section become of peculiar interest at this particular juncture.

It is well known that Davis is esteemed throughout the South, solely as the representative of the cause of secession, and that the people who heartily hated him during the last years of the Confederacy, now honor him only as the incarnation of disloyalty In this character they shower ovations upon him and would support him for President of the United States in preference to any other candidate On the other hand, Mr Greeley is honored and respected by the loyal people of the nation for his honest efforts in behalf of liberty and justice and although his characteristics are not such as would command confidence in his executive ability there are some who would like to see him at the head of the Government and he has entered the arena with a confidence that he is not without Presidential ambition Here then we have two aspirants for the Presidency now on the Southern stump and presumably canvassing that political section That one or the other has mistaken the actual temper of the people is apparent from their expressions, although it is not difficult to understand that Greeley's theory that Southern loyalty is so far restored as to warrant perfect confidence is more acceptable to the South as preparing the way for the re-assertion of the doctrines of Davis.

Mr Greeley finds everywhere the proofs of a renewal of fraternal feeling of acceptance of the issues decided by the war and a general spirit of loyalty which only requires the fulfillment of his panacea of universal amnesty to blossom into the very flower of devoted patriotism Having travelled through Texas without being dragged from his bed by the Ku Klux Klan he is impressed with the profound state of peace which prevails in a community once given to the reckless use of bowie knives revolvers and lynch law hemp and he expresses his conviction that Texas is the most highly reconstructed He even ventures to commend the people for their judicious abandonment of the heresies of secession and politely and familiarly congratulates them upon accepting the inevitability of the Union the emancipation of the slaves and the extension of universal suffrage, as facts which receive the unqualified endorsement of their better second thought. He finds everything rose colored in Texas and would not hesitate to equally seal the compact in a new and universal loyalty by falling on the breast of one representative Confederate like A H Stephens or Jefferson Davis and extending the olive branch in the shape of a certificate of eligibility to the Capitol, or even the White House at Washington

Were the statements of this credulous philosopher—blinded with benevolent delight at his reception among a people who but a short time since would have offered bounties for his head—the only testimony received from the South at this time there might be danger that the general public would be led astray by his sincere faith in the present loyalty of that people but Jeff Davis who knows the temper of his late constituents and who is still recognized as the representative of Southern ideas has emerged from obscurity simultaneously with the advent of a bondsman and touches the chords of rivalry till they ring out the old strains of the Bonny Blue Flag' amid an enthusiasm which savors little of renewed allegiance to the national Government The country may yet owe the traitor something for the audacity with which he has awakened such a response to the childlike confidences of the Tribune philanthropist, as leaves no possibility of mistaking the actual sentiment of the South Met at every stage of his triumphal tour by deputations of prominent citizens anxious to do him honor, his parlors become the scene of popular receptions where throngs press forward to declare their allegiance to our President Courts of Justice are adjourned while Judges pay homage to the greatest criminal of the age and when at last, with stimulated reluctance the hero of the hour unbosoms his seditious counsels and declares his faith in the future triumph of the 'lost cause the secession spirit breaks through the restraints of policy with a vehemence of applause which induces the assertion by a Southern paper that "The South is awakening under this inspiration and the tempest is brewing"

The Democratic talk of a new departure" is idle, while Jeff Davis is cheered to the echo as he declares 'I am not of those who accept the situation I accept nothing," when he says I don t believe I did any wrong, and therefore I don't acknowledge it;" when he repudiates the idea that anything has been settled by the war Mr Greeley doubtless speaks as he believes, and Davis talks as he feels The one would have us believe the South cured of its folly and anxious to strengthen the bonds of nationality; the other touches the spring which discloses the underlying sentiment of his people, and shows how little it would require to fire the Southern heart for another revolt. If Mr. Greeley remains blind to the real significance of the political drift of Southern feeling, the community at large are not likely to make the same mistake, while Jefferson Davis continues to awaken enthusiastic applause by his bold defence of the principles that instigated and sustained the rebellion.

"DE MORTUIS NIL NISI BONUM." A correspondent who was personally intimate with Gen. Cluseret during his service in our army, pays a tribute to the memory of his friend in another column. The atrocities at Paris as reported, have been so hideous that we may hope for the sake of humanity and civilization that the frightful responsibility resting upon the leaders may prove to have been to some extent exaggerated.

DEMOCRATIC TIMBER The Belfast Journal gives the following list of names from which a Democratic candidate for Governor may be selected It says there is no lack of 'excellent timber," but does not state how many of the proposed nominees would accept the unfortunate situation-

Of those who would make popular candidates and acceptable Governors, and that have not been before the people, we can name Hon Charles P Kimball, Hon W L Putnam and Gen Sam Anderson of Portland Henry K Bradbury, Esq, of Hollis, Caleb R Ayer Esq, of Cornish, Hon Joseph Titcomb of Kennebunk, Dr Alonzo Garcelon, of Lewiston, Hon J W Bradbury and Artemas Libby, Esq., of Augusta, Hon E W Farley, of Newcastle, A P Gould, Esq, of Thomaston, Arno Wiswell Esq, of Ellsworth, Hon J C Talbot, and George Walker, Esq of Machias, George B Burns, Esq, of Calais, J C Madigan, Esq, of Houlton, Gen Gorham L Boynton, W H McCrillis, Esq, and Geo W Ladd, Esq of Bangor, with probably others whose names do not occur to us

Jeff Davis s late speech at Atlanta, Ga, is attracting much attention. The New York Herald thinks that for this "haughty marplot to assume to be a leader again and to address the Southern people on political affairs is the acme of impudence,' and the Times contrasts Davis s speech with those recently made by Horace Greeley in Texas inferring therefrom that either Mr Greeley or Jeff Davis misapprehends the temper of the Southern people 'We have, it says, Davis making seditious harangues, and Mr Greeley declaring that all is peace Both cannot be right." The Tribune says Davis s rhetoric has no great intrinsic value, but the manner in which it is received is equivalent to a notification from the Southern Democracy that the New Departure will not go — The Post says there is no repentance that can atone for Davis s crimes He will die under the brand of a traitor and the shame of a thousand crimes Better for him had he worn into oblivion the disguise in which he sought six years ago to escape from his country'

Fortune again shows her fickleness in the fate of Jecker the Mexican banker, who was shot by the Paris Communists Jecker who was a Swiss by birth, had transactions with Miramon, and secured a quantity of Government bonds issued by that usurper Mexico would not recognize them, and Napoleon III wishing to add another to his many pretexts for invading her soil, made Jecker a French citizen and then proceeded to enforce the fraudulent demand This French citizenship enabled the Communists to arrest the old banker as a hostage, with impunity and thus led to his miserable death

GENERAL CLUSERET

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier

The telegraph announces the death of Cluseret—shot by musketry in the Barrack Prince Eugene This is a sad termination to an honorable career—to a brilliant life endowed with extraordinary gifts of person and mind and capable of accomplishing much good for his fellow men Cluseret was educated at the famous military school of St Cyr, and entered the French army at an early age Although but 44 years old at the time of his death, he had passed more than 20 years of his life in military service He had studied the art of war in the campaigns against Abd el Kader in Algeria and was one of the three officers who led the desperate assault on the Mamelon Vert and which proved to be the key to the Malakoff and Sebastopol He served with distinction in Italy and afterwards joined Garibaldi in the glorious Sicilian campaign which gave freedom and harmony to despairing Italy

At the commencement of our civil war he was advised by Garibaldi to offer his services to the United States, and was offered rank in our army by our Minister then residing at Sardinia. Shortly after arriving in this country he was appointed Colonel and assigned to the Staff of Gen McClellan, but was soon after transferred to the Army of Western Virginia then commanded by Fremont Whilst under this General he was entrusted with the charge of the Advance Guard and proved his soldierly qualities during the pursuit of Jackson down the Shenandoah Valley After the removal of Fremont he continued under Sigel in command of the rear guards in the retreat from the Rapidan He soon attracted the malignant eye of Halleck, —that great American Marplot—and rebuffs and petty arrogances, in which the Chief of Staff was profoundly versed quickly touched the pride of the Frenchman and compelled him to resign Lincoln offered as a political favor to a friend to reinstate Cluseret in the army but Cluseret would not accept military rank bestowed in such a manner After leaving the army he returned to New York and resided there until the events of the late war in France called him home

We are too far distant from Paris to comprehend fairly or judge correctly of the situation or the merits of either party We all have a distrust of feeling against the Commune, biased by the reports that have come to us through the Germans or the Versaillists But we have not yet listened to its defence We are even ignorant of the real and unseen causes that led to the revolt against the present Government. Certainly no trivial complaints caused one hundred thousand men to take up arms and accept the ordeal and desperate result of battle. Nowhere on this globe is man or idea so easily mistaken or misconstrued as in Paris We execrate the memory of Robespierre without attempting to separate him from the crimes that were committed in his name The impartial future will find something to honor in the character of this man. Napoleon in a reflective mood at St. Helena well said, "Robespierre has been condemned but he has not been tried'

All this bloodshed, all those scenes of cruelty and destruction which have plunged France in misery and mire deeper than ever, methinks perhaps might have been avoided had the implacable and selfish Thiers been possessed of clemency and generosity and listened to the demands of the National Guards One does not easily forget the obstinacy of Thiers which assisted the downfall of Louis Phillippe. To-day he displays greater firmness or cruelty—but this time he wins and France to-day is as far from being a Republic as when under the merciless grasp of the "coup d'etat"

The dispatches state that but 600 of the Versaillists were lost in the assault on Paris, while 22,000 of the Communists were slain — The evidence is conclusive and betrays massacre following surrender Who will believe that a hundred barricades were stormed with a loss of only six hundred men The darkest side of this picture is not yet seen. We regret this waste of life on either side, for France will long lament the loss of many a gallant spirit. And especially do we mourn the loss of Cluseret, for he was a progressive man, endowed with mental powers of the highest order. To those who love to detract from the worth of the living and even revile the memory of the dead, we will only say that Gustave Cluseret was thought worthy of the rare friendship and protection of the noble and distinguished Henri Martin.

If we are not "Mistaken,"

We have a limited stock of

Boots & Shoes

And as the quantity is small, it takes

BUT ONE STORE

to hold it we have less territory to watch over and notwithstanding we are deprived of the satisfaction of paying enormous rents for two or three stores, we are content that it should be so satisfied that our loss in this respect will be the public s gain

We presume this is one of the reasons we are unable to sell as cheap as some of our more fortunate neighbors, and taken in connection with what our wife says —that 'a small army of clerks (such as you would have to employ in three stores) consume a powerful lot of provender, which, recent statistics seemingly show cost money, and the explanation is complete

Still be are willing to be humble if we can only be good

Our goods are all manufactured—except what calf skin Sole and Upper Leather we keep on hand to make up as people may want—and we would add were not bought with barter but with the regular medium of exchange—cash Aye filthy lucre

We consider it none of our business whether you be rich or poor and shall sell you what you want to buy with no reference to the matter

We have three pair of those Gents Fine Calf Sewed Boots short leg for summer, only $3 75 (we are not very firm in our prices for these goods and will vary the price a quarter either way

We have none of Garalaldi s old Boots but have a pair of wooden shoes made in New Sweden, Aroostook County Maine

Boys Strap and Buckle Shoes thick and strong only $1 25—or a great deal better one for a little more money)

P S Parties wishing fine prices to go is will please say Jim s Rich upon entering the store and it will be all right

In conclusion,—take it coolly—there s nobody hurt and there always has been enough shoes in Bangor to supply the trade and the prospects are as good for the future as they have been in the past We close with the satisfactory information

EAST MAINE CONFERENCE

DEXTER, June 2, 1871

To the Editor of the Whig & Courier

The twenty fourth annual session of the East Maine Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church was opened in Dexter on Wednesday morning, Bishop E. R. Ames presiding. The first hour was as usual spent in the usual sacramental services after which the Conference Roll was called Forty-eight members responded to their names, several having died since the last session and a number being unavoidably absent.

The Conference was then organized by the selection of Rev B S Arey as Secretary, Rev C Stone, Assistant, and Rev W W Marsh Recording Secretary

Conference business was taken up with zest, and more than the usual amount was dispatched for the first forenoon;

The Presiding Elders represented their respective districts Their reports showed that the past year has been one of prosperity in the work, many churches and parsonages have been built or improved

Wednesday evening a Temperance meeting was held in the Methodist Church, and was largely attended, the seats being filled and the standing room occupied. Rev A S Townsend of Eastport presided The audience was addressed in a stirring manner by Rev A S Ladd, of Waterville Rev C F Allen, of Bangor, Rev C A Plummer, of Wiscasset, and others. The prevailing idea seemed to be that the liquor law should be enforced, and the rum traffic wiped out from the community

Thursday forenoon the Conference was addressed by Rev Dr Kynett of Philadelphia, and in the afternoon by J P Magee, Esq, of Boston Other noted speakers, among whom are Mrs Willing of Chicago, and Mrs Pope of Boston, have arrived and will address the meetings Rev Dr Haven, editor of Zion's Herald is expected to-night and will preach at one of the churches in town next Sabbath. Rev Dr Kynett of Philadelphia, and other eminent preachers will also supply other pulpits on that day The Methodist services on the Sabbath will be held at Town Hall Sermon by the Bishop, Rev Dr Ames

The Conference has voted to hold its next session at Orono, May 1872

The spirit of the session is pleasant, and the utmost harmony has prevailed The citizens of Dexter have shown the members of the Conference much hospital attention, which they may be sure, is duly appreciated

This is the insolent way in which the ex-rebel chief in his Atlanta speech refers to the people of the North "Filled with that jealousy which springs from the knowledge of their inferiority, and of the justice of your pretensions, and conscious of broken covenants and a violated Constitution, they (the loyal men of the North) mistrust every movement, and tremble with fear when they think that right may again prevail." Is there not such a thing as mistaken leniency?

A NEW BREAKFAST.

BY A MEMBER OF THE PERIOD.

Whereas, Our employers by giving
Three dollars for ten hours work
Find small enough for living,
And manage all labor to strike,

Be it decided, That we'll work but eight hours
And charge them five dollars or more,
Thus showing distinctly our powers
And never they're to seek them before

Resolved, That it working on cotton
Which we all have to wear and to buy,
When less hours and more pay we have gotten,
Or cloth shall not cost us so high,

Resolved That the price of our shooting
If costing a shilling a yard,
Through the measure proposed at this meeting)
Is fixed at ten cents on our card

Resolved That a fair distribution
Of the wealth of the world, which we claim,
Would give us that slight contribution
To the cost of the sheeting we name

Resolved That more pay and less labor
Would make the expense any more,
For man would then live off his neighbor,
Whose profits would lonely be lower

Resolved That society's awful
And rapidly growing much worse,
And that a reform we think lawful
Is to empty society's purse

Resolved That the word corporation
Means slavery or prussion and ill,
That money's an aristocration
Yes spit when it comes to our till

Resolved That we're all chained in slavery—
By fraud many more by oppression
All our rights have been taken by knavery,
And we alone know what is best

Resolved That our entire philanthropic
For the present is tuned on this pitch —
Its less that we do the more payment
That motto will make us all rich

Resolved, That 'more pay' is a blessing
With increase of work is a sin —
And a sigh to any labor distressing
We bread not to our protest a pin

Resolved That dear men are the cheapest
Which equal by far the most dear
Still water is always the deepest,
As the muddier is the more clear

A pause, and friend the trapper rose to his feet. "Wal, stranger, rather than see the play stopped, I will be the wolves." The preacher pronounced the benediction at once.

A SURVEY OF THE PARIS RUINS.

While the smoke of the late civil conflict and of burning buildings yet hangs over Paris, and while the telegraphic despatches from that desolated city, in the hurly-burly of the hour, are hopelessly contradictory and confused, it is impossible to tell what has been the actual amount of destruction done to its historical edifices and public monuments It will be interesting, however, from a survey of the last nine troubled weeks to form some idea of the damage, and ascertain, as far as this can be done, what yet remains of the beautiful city which the Germans handed over, after their brief occupation of it, comparatively uninjured, to the French authorities.

While the siege was yet going on very proper precautions had been taken, under the competent direction of Jules Favre, for the preservation of the great works of art and the fine architectural details of the capital The master pieces of painting were taken from their frames, carefully rolled up, and stored in the vaults, and the sculptured reliefs of the arches and palaces were securely protected by earth cushions and heavy wooden beams from the shells of the bombardment.

When the civil conflict between the Commune and Versailles had culminated in an incessant cannonade from the forts and batteries on either side, the Arc de Triomphe was the first structure that sustained material injury. The guns of Versailles from Neuilly-bore directly with effect blank range upon the open Place de l'Etoile, in the centre of which the Arc stands, and unfortu-

S., there will be an unbroken line of Railroad from Halifax to all the chief cities of the United States, and as two or three days of ocean travel can be avoided, and about 36 hours time saved, from New York, in going to or coming from Europe, by rail to or from Halifax—one of the finest harbors for passengers, mails and freight, will thereby be added to the trade over the E & N.
